THE 1976 LEGEND

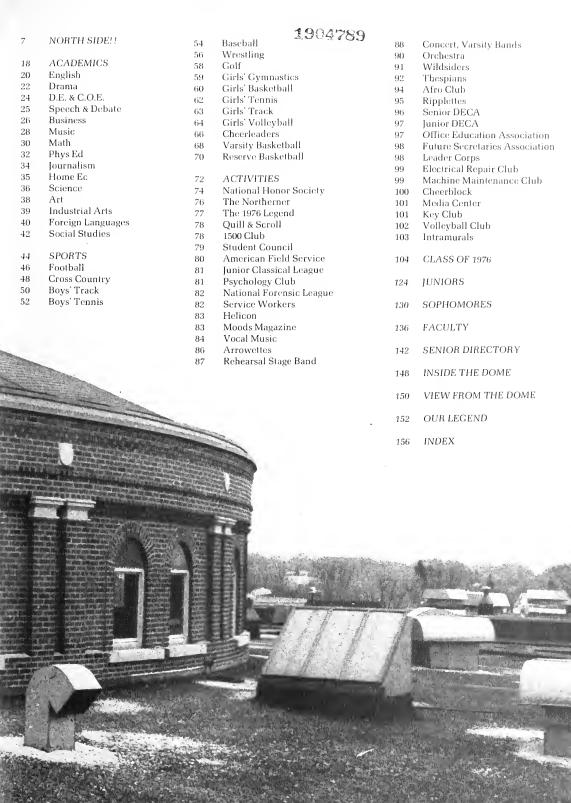

OF

NORTH SIDE HIGH SCHOOL VOLUME 48

EAST STATE BOULEVARD AT NORTH SIDE DRIVE FORT WAYNE INDIANA

NORTH SIDE!!

I recall those North Side years
As misty visions in timeless mirrors . . .
Life rallied beneath the Dome;
Where we, the Redskins, once did roam . . .
Old and new friends—
The familiar names . . .
At clubs, classes, parties,
And basketball games.
Obstacles—a school full,
Challenging and pitiful . . .
Regulations, hall passes,
Conversations, friends in classes . . .
Today's desperations and tomorrow's hopes
Amazingly blended . . .
Pillared Domeland aut-of-date—
And astonishingly splendid . . .
NORTH SIDE! !

Ah, I remember it well ...

After finding space at a table, an empty chair, and some food, students enjoy talking with friends in the busy cofeteria.

As the team anxiously enters the field, the Marching Redskins' triumphant music charges up spectator and football player alike.

In the facilities set up on the stage, nervous underclassmen direct their fabricated smiles to the camera in order to provide their image for school records and the yearhook.

A Fresh Beginning:

September, October

Summer sun departs:
The journey starts.
Looking ahead.
I'll never endure to June!
How I miss the leisure life—
From morning till afterneon.
One part of me enjoys
The excitement and friends.
Another part of me can't wait
Until the school year ends.
Moving on to better days
After this month of September,
I'll just forge ahead
And not try to remember . . .

Jumors Brian High and Glenda Steinbacher huy a movie ticket from Junior Tami Fryback

Juniors Peggy Schuhler and Ann Eherhart review plans for a Christmas party sponsored by the American Field Service club members

Senior Jerry Gatewood attempts to score with a lay-up in a game against the Northrop Bruins during the Holiday Basketball Tourney.

10 NORTH SIDE! 1

During the mayoral campaign, Mayor Ivan Lebamoff visits North Side to explain his policies to students. Mayor Lebamoff lost the office to his challenger. Robert Armstrong.

Winter's Entrance:

November, December

All aver town Green fades into brown. Summer vitality is gone-Life will never be the same. Oh, those free-wheeling times Before this winter came! But winter isn't all bad Throughout its duration-I am eagerly anticipating A much needed vacation. When those holidays came I'll have time to enjoy winter, And wile away the days Until the New Year will enter ...

Under a pile of Christmas packages, seniors Liesa Vachon and Roxanne Desmond ride the escalator to an upper level in Glenbrook mall in order to complete their shopping spree.

New Year Routine:

January, February

Bid farewell to '75; The Bicentennial comes alive. I repeat the same routine-At school day after day. Oh, how I'd like to celebrate The New Year in a new way! Tests are a displeasing method For the first semester to conclude. They just somehow don't give me That "Bicentennial Mood!" To lighten my many problems Caused by that school pain, At the end of almost every week I go to the basketball game ...

In the newly built shelter on the St. Joseph River, students have an appartunity to gather in a tranquil setting and view North Side and the State Boulevard bridge.

The window at the end of the 320 carridar provides a panarama of the Old Crown Brewery, which recently closed after a history that began during the Civil War.

On a Saturday afternoon of Reservior Park, many Redskins hit the slopes with sleds while others play ice hockey on the lake.

In her job at a phormacy after school, Senior Debbie Dietz completes o transaction by giving a customer his return money.

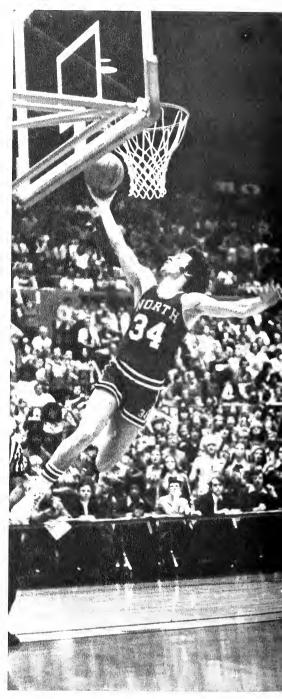

To measure mental growth ottained in all subject oreas since completing the ninth grade, seniors strain to complete the lowa Test of Educational Development.

At his jab in a grocery store, Senior Joe Willig makes on order for same items which are needed for next week

Performing one of her many on-the-joh duties at a hotel gift shop, Semor Kay Foltz takes a message from a customer over the phone.

During the Semi-State Tournament at the Coliseum, Senior Jim Anspach takes advantage of a fast hreak and goes up for a lay-up.

After the scoreboard signals a Redskin victory over the Wayne Generals in the regianuls, triumphant cheerleaders and team members celebrate in a spectacular frenzy on the floor.

Spring Vacation:

March, April

Warmed by the sun, School teems with fun. My life is rescued By Spring Vacation-A chance for needed rest And recreation. Make my own time-It's mine to spend. Give attention to myself, My own best friend. Some people go to Florida, Others go to sleep. But when returning to school, We'll all be in homework-deep ...

Showing their avid support for the team, seniors Debbie Cantwell, Patrice Butler, and Joyce Carlson construct a spirit poster to adorn their homeroom door during the semi-state games.

Sad Departure:

May, June

The final Redskin day draws near. Brilliantly, the summer sun is here! Anticipating days without homework, I find my confidence starting onew. It would be impossible to count The many things I want to do! But, somehow, there's something odd About the way things stand. It's not supposed to be this sad—This isn't what I had planned! School moves much too fast When it's in the last inning. In rushes the anticipated end. The entrance to an uncertain beginning

After school in the third-floor hollwoy which circles the gym, Teacher Orvil Schlatter completes his sixth lap while Senior Mark Shollenberger and Junior Scott Derrow begin their second.

In preparation for a sunny weekend day on Lake James, Senior Tim Springer polishes some instruments on his friend's speedhoat.

ACADEMICS

Students participate in English activities

Participation in projects helped students learn how to utilize effectively the English language.

Several students contributed stories, poems, and photographs to a project organized by the Literature Seminar. This senior class, with assistance by teachers Mr. James Lewinski and Mrs. Kathleen Neuhaus, published a new student-oriented magazine entitled Moods. Other seniors toured local radio and television studios with Mrs. Zola Noble, teacher, to observe the processes of the mass-media.

Meanwhile, junior students learned the relationships between English and American History. Students studied the history of the English language and developed writing skills in this course. Field trips provided the opportunity to learn about local folklore. During this time, students taught by Mr. Micheal Morris became pen pals with elementary school students.

Sophomores also participated in projects. They had the opportunity to display their hobbies in class. Commented Mr. Norman Fisher, teacher, "Hobbies have special significance and I've found that students enjoy telling others about them."

Mr. Harold Gruver, teacher, and members of a sophomore class look over various types of comic strips on his bulletin board. Students learned the significance and ideas expressed in these cartoons.

Mr. Robert Pugh assists a grõup discussion involving juniors John Lothamer, Jeff Nordyke, and Sterling Hartzag. Mr. Pugh planned many group discussions and class activities.

Mrs. Noble reads a passage from a textbook entitled "Points of View" to Senior Cindy Hagan.

A sophomore English class listens carefully as Mr. Fisher explains his grading procedure and class requirements. He also discussed the possibilities of taking some field trips.

In search of entertainment, Junior Phyllis Perkins looks at Mrs. Neuhaus' movie catalog.

Seniors Teresa North, Marlena Javor, and Barb Woods prepare for a test in a senior English class taught by Mr. Lewinski.

 $\mbox{Mr.}$ Fred Humphrey and one of his sophomore classes participate by reading and discussing topics mentioned in their textbooks.

Productions enrich "drama appreciation"

Productions ranging from an allschool comedy to a childrens' play occupied the Drama Department.

Advanced drama classes produced one-act plays; first-year students presented the childrens show. All memorized scripts and learned how to perform effectively.

Stagecraft classes built sets which could be reused after every performance. This kept the construction costs to a minimum.

Mr. Lincoln Record, drama director, encouraged "appreciation for the medium of drama, which includes knowledge in acting, makeup, costume, and theatre management." He also taught the history of the theatre to his Beginning Drama classes.

Many students in the drama classes participated in the Thespian Club, an organization that assisted the classes in raising funds for the various productions.

Seniors Sara Rumage, Mike Quigley, Bob Hunter and Molly Higgins rehearse for "The Curious Savage," o camedy that began the Narth Side theatrical season of Mr. Record.

During a game of charades in drama class, Junior Leonard Strack portrays comedian, Charlie Chaplin. His audience includes juniors Karen Shallenberger, Mike Long, Vickie Sauers, and Anita Salazar.

Senior Calvin Swangin and Junior Larry Hunter, set the spotlights for a concert.

Junior Steve Goff and seniors Mary Goff and Gerry Strack practice lines for a skit which they will perform for the class.

Seniors Jim Bryson, Eugene Languell and Mark Perry work an a window for the set of the all school comedy $\mbox{\it The}$ Curious Savage.

Putting a doorway together is one of the many projects the stage craft class encountered. Looking over the way it's progressing is Senior Rick White.

Mr. Record studies the script for "The Curious Savage," his first play of the year.

Students find jobs with D.E, C.O.E.

Two programs directed by the Business Department offered employment to students interested in getting a job through the school.

In Distributive Education, students matched their career interests with job opportunities. They made their own plans for the program and received advice from Mr. Richard Irving, director. Each student studied merchandising and sales promotion in the field of marketing. Students experienced a tremendous amount of cooperation working with businesses in different career areas.

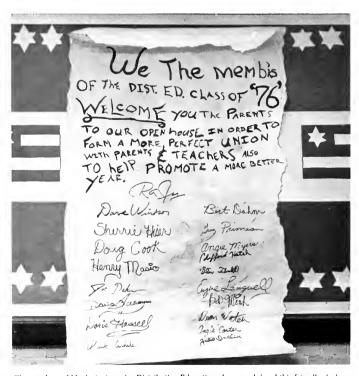

Cooperative Office Education, directed by Mrs. Sandra Macy, involved office work. In each semester students received one credit for attending morning classes at school and two on the job. Class discussions included topics such as office etiquette and secretarial skills.

D.E. Instructor Mr. Irving answers some questions concerning marketing and sales promotion for Sophomore Lisa Sievers as she and Junior Barry Bumgardner read magazines for a class project.

During some free time, Senior Cheryl Kromer finishes an assignment for her accounting class in the ${\rm C.O.E.}$ class.

The members of Mr. Irving's senior Distributive Education class proclaimed this friendly declaration for the parents on Back To School night during September.

Mrs. Myers helps Sophomores Nancy Thomas and Stan Powell participate in their "dramatic duo." In a dramatic duo, two persons interpret a humorous or dramatic selection taken from a play.

Courage developed through experience

Participation in speech and debate gave students self-confidence in public-speaking situations and the ability to express themselves in an easier. more organized manner.

"In these classes, students learn poise, self-confidence, and skill so they can talk to groups of people without fear," commented Mrs. Claryn Myers, instructor. "It also prepares them for speech courses in college."

Students learned how to prepare and deliver speeches designed to inform, to demonstrate, to stimulate, to persuade, and to convey a story. Correct body posture and a clear voice, emphasized by Mrs. Myers, helped students give effective speeches.

They also studied broadcasting and other occupations where their skill could be utilized.

Senior Denise Porker daes exercises to improve the flexibility of her vocal expression.

Senior Laura Lombard and Sophomore Dan Deody participate in a cross exam and debate session. During these three-minute sessions, a pair of teams with opposite views challenge each other's opinions.

Enrollment creates big business boom

The Business Department grew significantly and became one of North's largest departments. Enrollment in business courses increased nearly 30% compared to previous years.

Employment Preparation, a new offering, dealt with seniors who had completed all of the available business courses. Although it didn't provide jobs, this course gave students the opportunity to brush up on clerical skills required for post-graduate employment.

Only four beginning typing classes existed this year, compared to the previous year's nine. "More students took typing in junior high; and consequently, came prepared for advanced typing at North," commented Mr. Dale Goon, teacher.

Sixteen different courses constituted the business curriculum. They also included retailing, data processing, business law, consumer education, recordkeeping, business arithmetic, accounting, and business management.

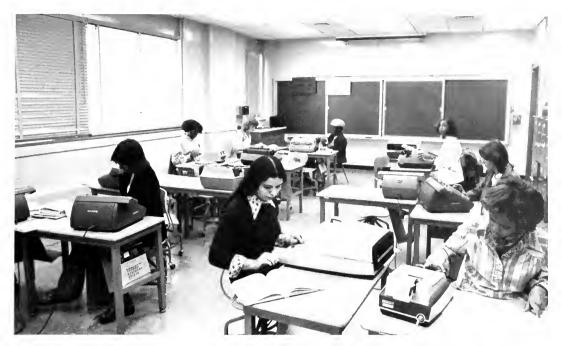

Larry Walker, sophomore, receives helpful instructions from Mrs. Jackie Hutmacher concerning the procedure of setting margins on an electric typewriter in advanced typing class.

Advanced shorthand students learn to build their speed by taking dictation from a tape recorder with the help of earphone sets.

Even the advanced typing students make mistakes. Here Sophomore Denise Harris applies the techniques of typewriting erasing.

Typewriters and adding machines provided the necessary equipment for Mrs. Wilma Ashes Employment Preparation class. This one-semester course, offered to seniors only, did not provide employment; however, they did discuss important business issues, such as interviews and grooming.

Continual practice is necessary as seniors Tina McNeely and Ann Oldham take dictation from a tope recorder in Advanced Shorthand. After these dictations, they typed their nates and received their grades.

Sophomores Cynthia Kennedy and Joy Olry utilize their advanced skills as they type.

Students participate in classroom, groups

Students in the Music Department participated in classroom studies as well as in many vocal and instrumental groups.

A new course involving 25 students, the Electronic Music class utilized a new lab equipped with complex electronic instruments.

Another class examined music from the standpoint of an audience. These Audience classes viewed music as an art related to other cultural arts.

"The Music Theory class studied the detailed aspects of music," commented Mr. John Hill, instructor. They examined the functions of voice and instruments in musical compositions.

Other students participated in the 10 musical groups. All performed at concerts throughout the year.

Practice, practice, and more practice—that's what the band has to do every day, with Mr. King's direction to keep up the image of the Marching Redskins.

There is more to the NISBOVA contest than just marching. Mr. Stubblefield and Sophomore Anita Witherspoon demonstrate a mustneatness. Perfect alignment, which Majorette Joyce Carlson attempts, is also important. Finally, the judge makes his decision.

Gathering around the piano with Vocal Director Hill provides on opportunity of which the Madrigols like to take advantage.

Singing seems to be one of the things Sophomore Patty Heath enjoys best in school.

Putting enthusiosm into the directing meons more output from the students.

With a little help from Mr. Stubblefield, these vocal music students improve their voices with hopes of joining a more advanced group next year.

Basic number skills develop math talent

Nine courses and 656 students confronted the five teachers in the Math Department

Advanced Math, a new course for students majoring in both science and math, taught the relationship between these two courses.

Trigonometry classes taught by Mr. By Hey studied angle and arc measurements.

Many college-bound persons took geometry and advanced Algebra courses, which provided the foundations for later studies. Meanwhile, others took fundamental courses in geometry and algebra, which taught students the principles of angles and calculation.

"The Survey of Math classes examined advanced mathematics from an elementary standpoint," commented Mr. Robert Lovell, teacher. This class studied a wide variety of mathematic topics.

Students who have not yet developed basic skills took basic math. In this class taught by Mr. Randall Liechty, they learned about fractions, decimals, and other primary functions.

Mr. Hey explains the purpose of circular functions to seniors Roy Serna and Mike Hutchison in Trigonometry, a caurse offered to all seniars who have completed Geometry and Advanced Algebra.

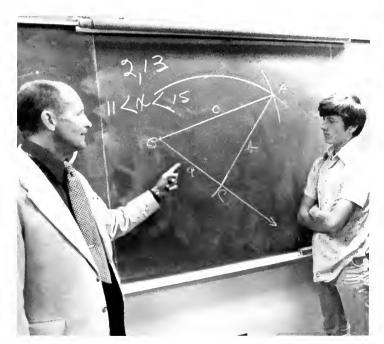

The volume of a cube is discussed between Mr. Jahn Stauffer and seniors Pam Grider and Micheal McDonald in Fundamentals of Algebra.

Junior Mike Markowski finds the missing foctor in a series of numbers. Projects such as these helped the students in Mr. Liechty's Survey of Math classes to understand how numbers interact.

Mr. Hey explains the angles of a triangle to funior Jeff Upton in his Fundamentols of Geometry class. This primarily junior course studied the basics of lines and angles, and olso reviewed basic algebra.

Mr. Stauffer explains the functions of intersections to his geometry class.

Facilities utilized in phys. ed. classes

Both gyms, the swimming pool, the tennis courts, and the football fields provided facilities for the physical education students.

Two new classes, entitled Body Building and Team Sports, also exercised in the weight room frequently.

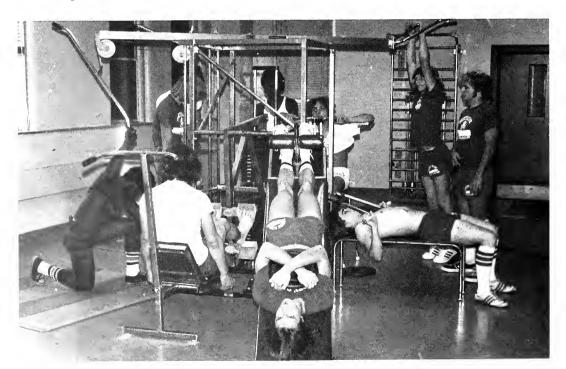

The Advanced Physical Education classes participated in a variety of activities. "We try to let the students choose the activities," commented Mr. Robert Taliaferro, instructor. Among the choices, Mr. Taliaferro taught the principles of "fly-cast" fishing along the St. Joseph River.

Miss Anne Donnelly's Advanced Phys. Ed. classes also experienced some new activities, such as fencing and scuba diving.

In the sophomore gym classes, instructors stressed the importance of "lifetime sports," which students can utilize throughout their lives.

In an effort to get a different perspective of the girl's gym, Junior Sue Nelson leaps into the air an a trampolene and performs same "death defying" stunts for her classmates in advanced gym.

The body building room provides an opportunity far both mole and femole students ta build up their muscles and increase their strength. Body building is on important part of all physical education closses, especially the Bady Building and Team Sports class.

While Miss Dannelly was in the hospital earlier this year, o substitute was called in to carry on. Here she leads an advanced class through warm-up exercises.

Seniar Brent Hartman strengthens his arms and bock during his body building class.

Students in one of Mr. Taliaferra's classes take advantage of the apportunity to participate in a fovorite postime—bosketball.

The phys. ed. program includes swimming to help students develop swimming skills and life-snving techniques. It also provides for a little fun.

Special skills used in both publications

"The Legend tells the story of the school year; but, in contrast, The Northerner keeps students informed of school events on a weekly basis," commented Miss Norma Thiele, publications adviser.

Both of these publications had staff members that pulled things together through their positions as editors, reporters, and photographers.

Students in Beginning Journalism classes received experience in newspaper writing by serving as reporters for The Northerner. They learned the techniques of interviewing, selling advertisements, writing copy, and taking photographs.

The Legend, financed entirely by subscriptions and advertisements, had a staff of 13 persons. Subscriptions and advertisements also financed The Northerner, which had a staff of 44 persons.

The procedure of writing cutlines, which describe pictures in the yearbook, is explained to members of The Legend staff by Miss Norma Thiele, Publications Adviser.

The phone provides a way for Junior Cindy Overholt, Northerner Advertising Manager, to consult prospective advertisers. Subscriptions and advertisements financed The Northerner.

In a beginning Journalism class, Sophomore Vicki Snyder checks her Northerner assignment.

Home Ec class evaluates problems

Self-understanding, as well as sewing and cooking, had emphasis in the Home Economics Department.

Mrs. Martha Goncalves, instructor, gave her students a new outlook on personal responsibilities by helping them understand family problems, emotional problems, and adolescence. Students in these classes also brought in small children to observe how they reacted when they played games and participated in class discussions.

The Clothing classes, instructed by Mrs. Edna Crocker, learned the techniques of matching patterns with the appropriate fabrics. They experimented sewing with silks and knits.

Menu planning and establishing proper diets occupied the Foods classes. At the end of the year, they prepared a large meal for each other, which they named the "last supper."

The ingredients contained in canned goods provides a topic discussion in one of Mrs. Crocker's advanced cooking classes. She encouraged students to become economy-minded.

A Humon Development class, led by Mrs. Goncalves, eagerly rushes around a fondue pot in hopes of receiving a serving.

Trust plays an important part in this Human Development class project as juniors Karen Shollenberger and Connie Roy simulate blindness.

Experiments, trips provide answers

Students who participated in the Science Department learned about the forces that surround them.

The curriculum included Physical Science, a class taught by Mr. Merle Rice and designed for interested students who had little scientific knowledge. This course studied light, heat, and electrical energies.

Students who wanted a more intense examination of these energies took Physics, which furthermore studied sound and motion.

In the chemistry classes, Mr. Beryl Lewis, taught chemical identification and compound composition.

Earth Science students, instructed by Mr. Mark Tipple, considered taking many field trips. Possibilities included exploring caves in southern Indiana and visiting several natural history museums.

Students in Environmental Conservation studied the relationships between man and the ecology. Mr. Dean Slavens, teacher, took these classes to visit Fox Island, a wildlife preserve south of Fort Wayne.

Doctor O'Neal sits back and takes it easy while students in Mr. Merle Rice's Man Made World class spend some time locating the parking lots, streets, and other objects in the Fort Wayne area.

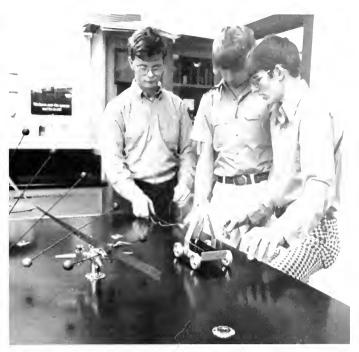

Susan Penningroth utilizes a balance beam as she weighs matter in Mr. Lewis' class.

Students in an Environmental Conservation class taught by Mr. Dean Slavens engage in a class debate. Same tapics discussed in this course: pollution, erosion, and life habits in the forest.

Junior Cindy Overholt heats a test tube containing iodine in a study of voporization.

Physics students Blane Ryan, Poul Fohlsing, and Don Warner experiment with Neuton's Third Law of Moving Objects in a Physics class instructed by Mr. Rice.

Students in a closs taught by Student Teacher Mr. Honger go on a field trip to the plonetarium ot Northrop, where they were able to observe some of the forces that surround them each doy.

An unknown material is being identified by its color spectrum by a student in Mr. Tipple's class.

School beneficiary of most art projects

The art students gained valuable experience while they made projects that benefitted the entire school.

Several advanced art students designed projects which included the cover for the school folder, and the cover for the English department's literary magazine entitled Moods. They also finished the art designs on the cafeteria walls.

Other persons made wooden sculptures, photograph prints, and macrame weaving projects. Upon completion, students enlivened the showcases near the principal's office with their projects.

The beginning art students studied the techniques of mixing colors. They also learned basic figure drawing and perspective drawing.

Water painting was on early project for the odvanced art students in Mr. Massoth's class. Senior Bob Lantz displays his work of art—o fooming sea.

It takes a lot of concentration and potience to gain the skills of macrome, and Senior Karen Bultemeyer seems to have mastered both.

Seniors Diane Reynolds and Cindy Wickliffe demonstrate how water colors give art students a chance to disploy individualism.

This piece of equipment, which is not as complicated as it looks, is called a milling machine. Metals Student Terry Beebe uses it to make a class project.

Even girls have a knack for drafting. Ellann McConnell draws a dimensional figure, her assignment in Mr. Kendall's beginning drafting class.

Students independent in Industrial Arts

A highly individualized curriculum in the Industrial Arts Department enabled students to complete many projects for themselves.

Students in the Woods classes instructed by Mr. Robert Edwards constructed bookcases, coffee tables, shelves, and other projects.

Meanwhile, the persons in the Metals classes completed projects such as rings and hammers. Mr. John Bill instructed this class.

Subjects including engine transmissions and electrical wiring occupied the Power Mechanics class taught by Mr. Clive Wert.

Persons in the drafting classes, instructed by Mr. Timon Kendall, completed over 100 drawings, which he graded according to neatness and accuracy.

Customs under study in foreign languages

The 280 students in the Foreign Language Department participated in projects to understand other cultures as well as other languages.

Spanish classes, taught by Mr. Paul Lemke and Mrs. Sherry Gerber, experimented with foreign foods and went to a local Mexican restaurant. Many advanced Spanish students learned at their own pace in independent study, receiving assistance from Mr. Lemke.

Two foreign students from France and Germany attended the French classes taught by Mrs. Ramona Ransburg. Several of Mrs. Ransburg's students participated in the American Field Service, a club which sponsored the foreign students.

The Latin classes, instructed by Mr. Ward Beckley, studied the Roman culture and language. Students completed projects to examine the foods of this culture by preparing ancient Roman recipies.

Students concentrated on the different cultures of Europe in Mrs. Gerber's Foreign Language Cultures class. Preparing European foods helped make the cultures come alive.

This "creature," a pinata filled with candy, made its home in Mrs. Gerber's Spanish classes.

luniar leff Catham models a sombrero and serape for Mrs. Gerber's Foreign Language Cultures class. During this time, they studied Spanish customs of all the Spanish-speaking nations of the world.

During his planning period, Mr. Lemke, Spanish instructor, sifts through the files for an assignment that the advanced Spanish classes will prepare the following day.

A relaxed atmosphere, as well as a small class, makes Spanish more enjoyable for the members of Mr. Lemke's fourth-year class.

Using the headphones in Latin class enable Sophomare Sally Smith to listen to dialogue from tapes os well os study from her book.

Juniars Patty Adang, Larry Hunter, and Ann Sherman use headphones to aid them in French.

Mrs. Ransburg listens to her second-year French class recite a dialogue from their textbooks. Students in this closs memorized and presented several skits to became acquainted with French pronunciation.

Courses reorganize to involve students

The Social Studies Department worked to generate student involvement.

In Government, a one-semester course required of all seniors, students toured the county courthouse, the city jail, and other governmental buildings.

The other one-semester course, Sociology, helped students understand themselves and society. Speakers from several social agencies talked to these classes.

As part of North's new humanities program, juniors learned the relationships between U.S. History and English. In these combined classes, they took several field tirps that pertained to both subjects.

Criminology, a new course, examined famous crimes and society's reaction to criminals.

Other classes in this department included Anthropology, which studied primitive cultures; and The Third World, which studied the cultures of the world's emerging nations.

A lively discussion on repression takes place during one of Mr. Eldridge's saciolagy classes, which is a necessary course that all seniors take in order that they may graduate.

Seniors Randy Fudge and Ken Braddie examine magazine articles an the Sharon Tate murder an Mr. Heath's criminalagy bulletin board.

Senior Mike Westerman studies articles on shyness in his sociology closs which is taught by Mr. Waveland Snider. Students also studied several other topics that deal with emotions.

Mrs. Rose Otte discusses an assignment with Sophomore Lisa Altekruse during an Anthropology class. Students in this course studied the world's primitive societies and the theory of evolution.

Mr. Charles Feller illustrates an assignment during this World History class.

SPORTS

Forfeit to Columbus; artificial turf loss

Spurts of greatness at times; at others not looking good at all—the football team under the direction of second-year Coach Verbie Walder had that kind of season.

They got off to a fast start winning the first game and the jamboree. Then they traveled to Dayton, Ohio to play Wright-Patterson and lost on artificial turf. This was the first time they or any team from North played on it.

Then they beat South division champion, Bishop Luers. After that came a five game losing streak, including a forfeit loss to Columbus, Indiana East, but finished the season on a winning note over South Side.

The leading rushers were Senior Leroy Bragg, Junior Gradlin Pruitt, and Sophomore Steve Nelson. The leading scorers: Seniors, Frank Thomas and Jim Anspach.

The team ended the season with a 2-4 record in the Summitt Athletic Conference and 3-6 overall.

A group of defense men come up to make a tackle on a Northrop Bruin runner in a reserve game.

Fullback Leroy Bragg appears to be anxious to return to action as Assistant Coach Timon Kendall adjusts Leroy's shoulder pads.

Junior Herbie Pugmire waits patiently as assistance is given to his injured eye.

The foatball team jubilantly runs onto the field after upsetting highly ranked and Sauth division champion, Bishop Luers.

13th in Sectionals; Knudson 29 of 153

"We had a very young team and I felt we progressed as a team," commented Cross Country Coach Mr. Dean Slavens. Of the top six runners there was only one senior, but three juniors. The rest of the team included another senior, four juniors, and three sophomores.

Mr. Slavens named Junior Doug Hiser as the most improved runner and Sophomore Dave Manning, best sophomore. Junior Dave Hoagland had the best time of the year at 13 minutes and six seconds, and Sophomore Dale Gossett had the best at 13 minutes and 57 seconds.

Eight of 14 runners earned letters, they included the above four and captains Tom Knudson and Dave McKinnis.

Mr. Slavens also said that the teacher's strike didn't hurt the team or any individuals. Two injuries did hurt the team though, the injured were Juniors Brian High and Jeff DeWeese. High's injury was between the second and third meets, while DeWeese's was later on.

Most of the meets were run at either Shoaff or McMillen parks, or at some golf course.

Senior runner Tom Knudson passes a Carroll Charger in a triangler meet against Carroll and Northrop at Shoaff Park.

Members of the crass country team do their warm up drills before a meet. These exercises kept the runners leg muscles from tightening up and pulling when they hit a low spot in the ground, or if they trip over a tree root.

Team members set

new school records

Setting school records highlighted the events of last year's track season. Team members Rick Rogers, Gary Lewis, and Tim Pickett all set records in their respective events of pole vault, high jump, and high hurdles.

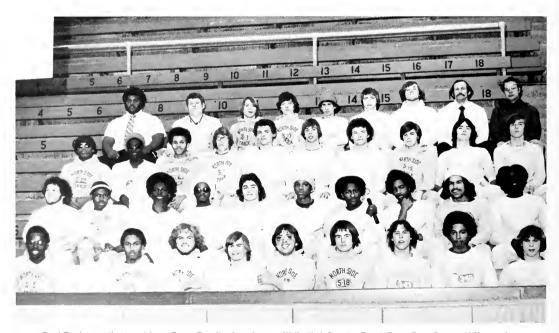

Rogers set an Elkhart Memorial High School indoor record at 14' in the pole vault. Pickett set a record there in the 50 yard high hurdles at 6.4 seconds. Lewis broke the school record in the high jump during the Goshen Relays at 6'7½".

These three, along with Max Hiser and Mike Marino, all went to the state meet. None of the six returned this year as five graduated, and Rogers transferred to Northrop.

The team finished 5th in the Goshen Relays, 4th in the SAC meet, 6th in the North Side Relays, and 6th in the sectionals.

Juniar Bruce Habig sprints toward the finish line after crossing his last hurdle during the shuttle hurdles, his specialty. This race has both high and low hurdles.

Senior Leroy Bragg receives the boton from a teammate in n relay race, during last year's North Side Relays. Lerny's specialty is the long jump, but he also runs relays.

Senior Al Hansen comes oround a turn during a race at a dual meet with Culver Militory Academy. This was the first meet in which o score was kept.

'Green' tennis team lacked consistency

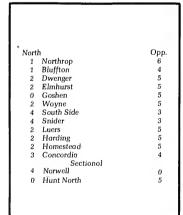

"We had no consistent number one player and no regular doubles team," stated Mr. Myron Henderson, tennis coach who pointed out that the team was "green". The reason there was no consistent number one player or regular doubles team was because Mr. Henderson did a lot of experimenting with his underclass-heavy team. He said that for one match he might use his number one and two players from the one before, but not neccessarily as partners.

Mr. Henderson doesn't feel the season was a disappointment because of the experience they gained, and all of their opponents had more seniors than they did.

Mr. Henderson said that one of the problems of high school tennis is that there is no state-wide way of keeping score. All Fort Wayne teams have to carry ten players, (four singles and three doubles) and play the best of seven, while in the sectionals they play the best of five.

Team experiences travels, new coach

The baseball team of last year opened the season with a trip to southern Indiana for three games in two days. The team lost the first with Clarksville Providence and the next day split with Floyd Central, winning the first and losing the second.

The team opened the season with a new coach, Mr. Mike Morris. He coached a young, inexperienced team, as he had only four returning lettermen. Erik Henry and Rich Primeau led the squad and both were named to the all-SAC team; Rich at shortstop was one of the hitters and Erik had one of the top strikeout ratios in the city.

The team closed out the season with a 1-0 loss to South Side in the first game of the Sectionals. The Archers avenged an earlier season loss of 9-7 in favor of the 'Skins.

Injuries slow team; 2 SAC wins, 3 total

Pre-season injuries meant the difference between a winning and losing season for the wrestling team. Returning lettermen Johnny Craig and Herb Pugmire both missed the season with injuries, as the team lost five matches by nine or less points.

However, a few wrestlers did shine through the losing season. Seniors Herb Ryan and Roy Serna, Junior Larry Hunter, and Sophomore Todd Nix all had winning seasons. In addition, three other players finished the season with an equal number of wins and losses.

Returning lettermen participate in meets

The golf team, coached by Mr. John Stauffer, practiced on their own time at local golf courses in an effort to prepare for the season.

Participating in 15 meets and 2 invitational tournaments, as well as a sectional, they met occasionally in the mornings to discuss ways of improving their stroke techniques.

Lettermen returning from last year's team included Senior Scott Wagner along with juniors Carl Richeal and Gary Lankford. Coach Stauffer stated that he was also expecting good rounds from returning reserves Lance Lahr and Mike Yoquelet.

Those who qualified for the team had to compete with all the returning members in several rounds of golf. Those receiving the best scores were elected for the team.

The 18 member gymnastics team, coached by Mrs. Diane Cole, took part in its second year of interscholastic competition.

The team's members consisted of anyone who held an interest and some ability in the sport of gymnastics.

The team contained three different levels of competition; beginning, intermediate, and optional. Three girls entered into each level. The girls were scored on a scale of ten points based on the difficulty and design of each

Co-Captains, Junior Jan Powers and Senior Sue Schwyn participated at the meets and at practice held every weeknight and Saturdays. "The gymnastic team, although lacking in depth, managed to place in all meets, stated Mrs. Cole, and Jan Powers, the team's most outstanding member ranked first in almost all meets held. Jan holds a goal of becoming one of the best high school gymnasts in the city.

Coach says season has shown progress

The girls' varsity basketball team opened their second season with three wins including two over SAC opponents Harding and Bishop Luers. After the good start they lost three straight, then won two of the next three.

First-year coach Vicki Ottoson, after the season, said, "Once again it has been a year when a lot of learning has taken place." She also said that they improved steadily as the season progressed and that by the end of the season they played "good ball."

Of the 14 members, 11 were underclass, so Miss Ottoson expects a good year next year. The team finished with a loss to Bishop Dwenger in the first round of the sectionals.

Returning members boost tennis season

The Girls' Tennis team, coached by Miss Anne Donnelly, welcomed back some of its most outstanding members from last year's team, including Debbie Cantwell and Roxanne Love.

With the cooperation of these girls. Miss Donnelly, and the rest of the team, the girls looked forward to a challenging tennis season and a chance to go to sectionals, regionals, and on to state.

The girls held a 10-1 season last year, winning all meets except for one, by taking sectionals and continuing on to regionals.

The returning members and the new members kept up a fighting racket for the team and helped keep North Side's name proudly displayed in city-wide competition.

Girls' abilities grow

as team progresses

Building on last year's strengths, the girls' track team had high hopes of not only improvement, but in setting some new records.

Commenting on the season, Coach Diane Cole said that the girls' track team did well in the conference because of "added interest and depth."

The girls worked out by running and lifting weights. Individual help was given by Coach Cole and her assistant, Student Teacher Julie Hollingsworth.

The events in competition include the 80 yd. hurdles, 100 yd. dash, mile run, 880 yd. relay, 440 yd. dash, 440 yd. relay, 880 yd. run, 220 yd. dash, 880 yd. medley relay, 81 lb. shot put, high jump, running long jump, and softball throw.

Successful spikers battle to regional

"The North Side spikers are a good sound team fundamentally, and a good competitive team," commented Mr. Ryland Talliferro, Girls' Volleyball coach. "We gave the other teams a good fight in the sectionals."

Mr. Taliaferro coached both the varsity and reserve teams in place of Miss Anne Donnelly, who missed the season because of illness.

The eighteen-member varsity team consisted of six seniors, eleven juniors, and one sophomore. The varsity team was required to practice every day after school.

The reserve team had ten members which included juniors and sophomores who were required to practice two days out of the week. The reserve team played three matches, in which they defeated South Side and Leo, but lost to Harding.

Members of the varsity team perform by using many different strategies against their opponents. This requires perfect timing and group coordination to work effectively.

New cheers, More

pep, new sponsor

Cheerleading consisted of only two squads, varsity and reserve, compared to the previous three. Each of these squads contained eight different positions.

Four seniors and four juniors constituted the varsity squad. These girls cheered at all varsity football and basketball games.

The reserve squad consisted of five sophomores and three juniors. This squad cheered not only at all reserve games, but occasionally at varsity games also.

The Cheerleaders met usually twice a week. During this time directed by their sponsor, Mrs. Sherry Gerber, they practiced cheers and mounts using both squads and planned skits for pep sessions.

They helped sponsor a cheerleading clinic where the girls met former cheerleaders, and created and learned new cheers, chants, and mounts. Several schools participated in the clinic and each presented a cheer or pep session idea at the end to show something special they had learned.

Team ends season in semi-state games

The varsity team won the Summit Athletic Conference regular season championship, but could only finish as high as third during the conference holiday tourney as eventual runnerup Northrop beat them in the semifinals. North beat Harding in the consolation game. Wayne won the tourney by beating Northrop by a point.

The team did, however, win the regular season championship by winning all their conference games.

The team met two teams ranked in the top ten during the season, Michigan City Elston, ranked number one, and Wayne, who was seventh at the time. The 'Skins lost to Elston by four points as they never shot a free throw in the second half. They defeated Wayne in what was supposed to be the showdown game of the year. But it did not turn out that way as North won by 33. After closing out the regular season, they entered the IHSAA Tournament with a 12-game winning streak. They defeated six stubborn teams before bowing out against the eventual champion, Marion, in the championship game of the semi-state tourney.

Juniors Shelly Van Ryn and Greg Noel, along with sophomores George Sweigert and Stanley Powell, all saw some action in some varsity games.

The reserve team, coached by Mr. John Stauffer and Mr. A.C. Eldridge, played prior to all varsity games, except those at the Coliseum.

The team had an average winning margin of almost 11 points through their first 16 games. The sophomore team also had a fine season as they lost one game in eleven.

Program, reception conclude NHS year

The annual recognition program and reception highlighted the activities of the National Honor Society.

During the program, the valedictorian, salutatorian, and high honors student were announced. At this time, the other members received achievement certificates.

To finance the program and reception, the NHS organized a car wash and button-making project in which they printed any words, pictures, or diagrams.

Membership into the NHS required a B+ average for seniors, an A-average for juniors, and an A average for sophomores. Mr. Randal Liechty, sponsor, estimated that 30% of the members were also in the NHS in previous vears.

Diverse skills used by newspaper staff

The newspaper staff worked to inform Redskins on current events every Friday throughout the school year.

Students on The Northerner staff received experience by working as editors, reporters, or photographers.

An editor-in-chief and other editors in news, feature, and sports, coordinated the activities of the reporters. Students in the Beginning Journalism classes, instructed by Advisor Norma Thiele, worked as reporters on the staff.

Two photographers, who also worked on the yearbook staff, provided the many pictures in the newspaper.

Business and advertising editors worked with local businessmen to finance The Northerner. Subscriptions and advertisements entirely financed the newspaper.

The Northerner followed guidelines approved by the Fort Wayne Community Schools in addition to following the policies established by the staff.

1976 Legend staff applies innovations

Remarkable advancements highlight The 1976 Legend. It has the distinction of being the first yearbook since 1939 that has a photograph on its cover. Another improvement concerns the utilization of large pictures.

But the most significant change pertains to the written material. Editor Dave Doughty emphasized the value of well-chosen words.

The 14 staff members drew upon a variety of skills taught by Advisor Norma Thiele, which included photo cropping, interviewing and writing, and working as a journalistic team. Included in the staff, two student photographers captured the school year in pictures. Editor Mary Kay McCollister coordinated these skills and decided where the elements belonged on each page.

Seniors Dave Doughty, Liesa Vachon, and Mary Kay McCollister go over pictures and layouts for the yearbook during one of the many hectic days.

Legend staff members Gay Lynn Culbertson, Liesa Vachon, Dave Doughty, and. Dee dee Reissig discuss the jobs that need to be done.

Journalists awarded for high achievement

Students working on the yearbook or newspaper had the opportunity of being awarded membership into two honorary journalistic clubs.

Over fifteen students constituted the 1500 Club, whose membership required that students earn at least 1500 points. Students earned points for almost every task performed on the yearbook or newspaper. Many members in this club earned more than 1500 points—Northerner Editor-in-Chief Bill Tutwiler earned over 10,000 points.

The Quill and Scroll Club, a national organization of outstanding senior high school students, required a recommendation by Journalism Advisor Norma Thiele and approval of Principal Daniel Howe. Other requirements necessitated that the student be in the upper third of his graduation class. The membership of the Quill and Scroll Club included both editors of The 1976 Legend, and the editor-in-chief and business manager of The Northerner.

Quill and Scroll Society: Mory Kay McCollister (Editor, The 1976 Legend), Dave Daughty (Editor, The 1976 Legend), Dennis Faust (Business Manager, The Northerner), and Bill Tutwiler (Editor, The Northerner).

Council aids morale through new events

The Student Council met once a week to formulate ideas for various activities, which included a student film service, a health week, and a homeroom council

The student film service, financed by low-cost student admission tickets, presented such films as "1776" and "American Graffiti."

In February the Student Council organized a health week, during which they made health-oriented posters and presented several assemblies

In an effort to be of better service to the entire student body, they established a homeroom council, in which each homeroom had a representative to relay ideas and get the response of the students.

Student Council members also served as guides for the sophomore orientation and parent visitation davs.

All of these activities were part of the Student Council's effort to build school morale and provide a voice for students.

Exchange programs sponsored by A.F.S.

The American Field Service involved students who had an interest in foreign countries. Also, students had the opportunity to apply for exchange programs. Sponsored by Mrs. Ramona Ransburg, the club is one of many A.F.S. chapters around the world.

The club raised funds through such projects as selling Christmas cards and membership cards. At the beginning of the school year, a banquet provided a chance for all A.F.S. students to get acquainted. Members also organized club parties throughout the year.

Exchange student Marlena Javor came from Germany on the AFS program. In addition to visiting Fort Wayne, she toured other parts of America before returning home.

Senior Marlena Javor, an exchange student from Germany, works an a project in Mr. Biberstein's Advanced Art class. As an American Field Service exchange student, she took a variety of classes.

J.C.L. investigates languages, cultures

The Junior Classical League helped to foster an interest in classical languages and increase fellowship as well as understanding within the group.

Although open to anyone interested in classical languages, its members consisted mostly of Latin students. During the year J.C.L. members participated in the city-wide "Festum Romanum" Latin Festival, and took part in several other functions. With their sponsor, Mr. Ward Beckley, they went to see the movie Fantasia. Their interest in the movie came from its unique handling of mythology.

Variety of topics occupy Psych. Club

Parapsychology, a science concerned with the study of extrasensory perception, provided one of the topics for the members of the Psychology Club.

Members also gained self-understanding through group discussions and hearing guest lecturers on various

Sponsors Wilma Ashe and Ward Beckley organized the club which met the third Monday of every month and was offered to all students.

Club participates in speech competitions

In the National Forensic League, sponsored by Mrs. Claryn Myers, students participated in speech meets which helped them develop the ability to speak in public and handle competition.

Mrs. Myers believed that it also gave them a sense of achievement.

They participated in approximately twenty-one contests.

The club, opened to any student who wished to participate in the speech meets and gain experience in public speaking, consisted of approximately thirteen members.

Students voluntarily assist administration

Students whose schedule allotted for some free time during the day had the opportunity to enlist as a service worker.

As a service worker they worked in one of the school offices such as the guidance or attendance office, running errands and doing other small jobs to help the staff.

Students received no credits for this assistance to the school as they choose to participate during their regular study hall hour, instead of going to that class.

Outlet for students given in language

Students who held a common interest and a high average in English participated in Helicon, Membership required a B or above for all junior and senior members.

The 20 member club headed by Mr. Robert Pugh met the third Tuesday of each month.

Throughout the year, the club sponsored a used paperback book sale and held a Christmas party at the Byron Health Center.

President Denise Parker, Vicepresident Brenda Watson, Secretary Marjorie Smith, Treasurer Janet Hopkins, and Social Chairman Anne Oldham participated in the planning of these events.

Students' thoughts expressed in Moods

"The magazine's purpose provided a way of showing the creativity of students through literary work," said Mrs. Kathleen Neuhaus, sponsor of "Moods".

Editor Jeanie Lapp, Assistant Editor Denise Parker, Fiction Chris Purdy, and Non-Fiction Julie Yaney, assisted Mrs. Neuhaus with the production of the new literary magazine.

The eight-member class consisted of juniors and seniors who had enrolled in English class, and held meetings during fourth period.

All members received credit for being enrolled in the specially selected class.

Training Choir start for vocal beginners

Students who wish to become members of one of the larger choral groups must first be a member of the training choir. In this class, the students work on training their voices and gaining experience in singing. They also work at preparing to audition for three larger choral organizations.

A large number of the members of the Training Choir who wish to continue in vocal music constitute most of the A'Cappella Choir. While gaining a deeper knowledge of vocal training, the students also worked on advancing music literature experience. The A'Cappella Choir performed at several concerts sponsored by the music department.

Students selected from the A'Cappella Choir constituted the Troubadours. Students had to audition especially for this group and gained entrance only by achieving a very high rating during the audition.

The Madrigals, which consist of juniors and seniors who have achieved superior ratings during their auditions, consists of ten members. Performing at 25 to 30 different concerts at North Side and other places in the Fort Wayne area during each year, they perform Madrigal music and are the most advanced group at the high school level.

Music Groups work to attain new skills

Drum Majors, Mike Pifer, and Joyce Carlson, directed the band determining the speed that the band would march.

Twenty pom-pom girls, seven Swiss flag twirlers, and one baton twirler constituted the Arrowettes. Being a part of the Marching Band, the Arrowettes performed at football and basketball games, competed in NISBOVA, where they placed in the first division, and helped sell fruit to earn money for the Fine Arts Department.

The twenty-two member Rehearsal Band which consisted of sophomores and a few juniors met everyday. The band served mainly for preparing sophomores for the Wildsiders and gave them a greater knowledge of jazz education and rock music. "A unique asset of this band proved to be that, besides being an elective, it gave members a chance to get together and do something that they enjoy and that they like to perform", commented sponsor, Mr. Ed King.

Seniors Mike Pifer and Jayce Carlson proudly display their Drum Major attire, which represents leadership and respect.

Practice, an essential part of being an Arrowette, had to be performed daily before, during, and after school occasionally

Bands are directed for school concerts

Performing at most concerts given by the Fine Arts Department, the Concert Band also performed at several junior high schools. The hand consisted mostly of upperclassmen, and provided them a chance to further their music education.

The Varsity Band had fifty-two sophomore members and was organized to further their education in music and prepare them for the Orchestra. Concert Band and Wildsiders, for which each member auditioned at the end of the year.

Both bands were directed by Mr. Ed King and performed at various concerts at the close of the year, which helped them to raise money for the Fine Arts Department.

Members of the bands sold calendars, fruit, and tickets for their concerts.

The money that was raised went toward the new uniforms, instruments, and equipment used to set up different instruments. A major part of the money went toward sending members to Summer Band Camp.

The combination of both bands constituted the Marching Redskin Band.

Senior Mike Westerman and Juniar Phyllis Payne take time out from practicing at band camp for a little fun. The Band spent one week at camp in August.

Advanced Musicians

led by Mr. King

Members of the Orchestra performed at most of the concerts throughout the year, and some of the members were selected from the orchestra to play in the pit orchestra for "The Sound of Music" sponsored by the Fine Arts Department.

Selected primarily for their ability to perform, every member of the String Ensemble took private lessons and played in the North Side Orchestra. The group offers a greater challenge in string literature and the chance to perform at a higher level than they would otherwise perform in the orchestra.

The Wildsiders Jazz Band opened to all advanced instrumental music students who had auditioned and were accepted. The twenty-seven member band performed in contests and concerts throughout the year. "Money for the support of the band was obtained through concerts put on by the Wildsiders," said sponsor, Mr. Ed King. The purpose of the band encouraged jazz and education and involvement for all music oriented students who held an interest in jazz and rock music.

The Arrowettes worked as hostesses at the reception held after the Christmas concert. The Music Depurtment spansored bath.

Thespians Troupe gets reestablished

The Thespian club opened to all advanced Drama students and served as "giving dramatic art students a chance to carry on the production of more plays outside the school," commented sponsor Mr. Lincoln Record.

The Thespians tried to urge more students to get involved in the dramatic arts, either as actors or stage crew, and to make the Thespian Troupe well known throughout the school by sponsoring basically plays and other activities such as "Readers Night."

Mr. Record reestablished the 35member club which had been out of service due to the increased number of school productions in the Fine Arts Department. The troupe continues on through the summer up to the International Theatre Conference.

70 Afro Americans gain self-confidence

Club chairman Harriet Jackson worked along with sponsor, Mr. Arthur Eldridge, and the other club officers, Co-Chairman Doris Hassell, and Secretary Paula McGee, to help all members of the Afro-American Club develop pride in their heritage.

The club, open to all students, consisted of seventy members.

"The Afro-American Club promoted understanding of the relationship between different races and taught more about black culture," stated Mr. Eldridee.

The club's finances came from several of the activities that they held during the year, such as several dances, a dinner, and a roller skating party.

The halls provide on early morning conversing place for sophomore Stevie Nelson, junior Chuck Andrews, and seniors Melvin White and Ernie Martin.

A water show provided the activity for the nine members of the Ripplettes. In this annual production they performed synchronized swimming routines with accompanying music.

Students auditioned for membership in the fall. In order to qualify, a student had to be able to swim well, learn quickly, and work well with others. The members frequently met in the pool after school to practice their swimming routines.

New Hockey Club meets at ice arena

Students with an interest in ice hockey organized a new club.

Every Monday evening during the winter season, 15 regular members (plus alternates) rented the Gunnar Elliott lce Arena and official referees. The members held additional meetings when they felt necessary.

Teacher Fred Humphrey sponsored the club, which discussed the possibilities of selling sweat shirts to finance the cost of renting the ice arena.

Local businessmen involved with DECA

The Distributive Education Club of America, opened only to the students who had completed the first year of Distributive Education, involved the various aspects of the business world.

Through discussions, students learned about marketing, sales, and distribution. They then put it into practice at their individual jobs. Receiving two business credits while at their jobs, this program involved many area businesses. Sponsor Richard Irving set up interviews for them, and left the rest up to the students. Performance both in class and on the job determined grades.

Students investigate careers in business

Junior members of the Distributive Education Club of America met during their first period class to learn about the world of marketing, sales, and distribution. In order to join students must be enrolled in the first year of Distributive Education.

In this club, students interested in such careers as marketing, distribution. and even interior designing, learned about the opportunities open to them. as well as established a foundation for their future careers. Upon completion of the first year students may enroll in an advanced class.

OEA students learn through class, jobs

Office Education Association, a club offered only to Seniors, functioned in coordination with the Cooperative Office Education class.

Sponsor Sandy Macy encouraged meetings at least twice a month which occurred during COE class time.

OEA placed students in jobs dealing with their business interests and, in turn, students received two credits for working at their job and one credit for classwork.

FSA investigates secretarial vocation

The Future Secretaries Association, sponsored by the Tawasi branch of the National Secretaries Association, met once a month during Advanced Shorthand class.

Adviser Irma Johnson worked with Mrs. Kathy Diehl, NSA Coordinator, in arranging special programs. The girls took part in the Tawasi dinners and sold stationery to make money for extra activities

Developing a better understanding of the business world and stimulating an interest in the secretarial profession proved to be the main objectives for the FSA Club.

Leader Corps aids Phys. Ed. classes

The Leader Corps, a volunteer service involving junior and senior gym students, assisted students enrolled in Phys. Ed. classes.

This service helped to develop leadership through on-the-job experience," said Miss Anne Donnelly, sponsor, It also helped to encourage initiative, responsibility, and good judgment to think intelligently and constructively.

Members of the Leader Corps helped assemble equipment, lead students in calisthenics, take attendance, and give demonstrations.

Electronics learned by fixing equipment

The members of the Electronics Repair Club worked to repair electronical equipment for North Side. for Fort Wayne Community Schools, for themselves, and for their parents. The list of items they repaired ranged from lawn mowers to radios. They also did car tune-ups.

The club, sponsored by Teacher Richard Wert and open to anyone with an interest in repairing electronical equipment, helped develop an understanding of the field of electronics.

Machines repaired by metals students

The Machine Maintenance Club provided an opportunity to learn the operating procedures of both old and new machines and the correct way to repair

The club, opened to all students enrolled in the Advanced Metals classes. held meetings once a month.

Students also studied the uses of machines, which encouraged them to consider a career in the machinist field. Sponsor Jon Bill taught members foundry work, welding, and working with the metal lathe

Student involvement shows school spirit

The combined boys and girls Cheerblock proved to be a success as the cooperation of members provided support and backbone at all athletic activities.

Anyone can join Cheerblock provided they are not involved in Pep Band or the sport that is being "cheered-on."

Cheerblock members practiced on nights preceding football and basketball games.

"We wanted the Cheerblock to be a Cheerblock at games and not lose any momentum, said sponsor Harold Gruver.

The group's main purpose served as giving support to North Side's athletic teams and building morale and spirit among the students during sports events.

On some of the caldest nights of the football season seniors Debhie Wright and Kathy Benner help support the team by riding a horse after touchdowns.

Assistance given in areas of library-AV

The Media Center had two main departments: The Audio-Visual Club and the Library Workers.

The Audio Visual Club, headed by Mr. Ted Crum, taught members the usage of audio equipment and machines as essential parts for audio and visual benefits. A majority of the club felt that the club gave them a chance to socialize with other kids who had something in common.

The library workers and their assistants, sponsored by Mrs. Carolyn Zehner, obtained opportunities to acquire full use of the library facilities and to help other students find the resources they needed.

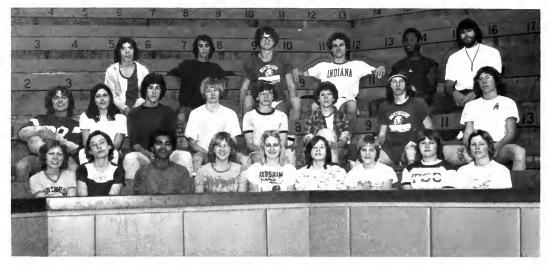

The members in the Audio-Visual Club, in addition to the library workers, received credit for being active in these clubs.

Key Club functions as a school service

Key Club members performed very actively in school activities, serving as ushers for ball games and raising money for various foundations. Members also helped usher school sponsored activities.

"To be a member carried a great deal of responsibilities such as being available for helping with almost any school sponsored production," said sponsor Mr. George McCowen.

Another main function of the Key Club was to continue publication of the Senior Kev: a directory of all North Side students.

OUR LEGEND

In the years to come you will, inevitably, open this book and your past experiences as a Redskin will come to mind.

Unfortunately, your memories will only be in the form of misty visions and occur only in brief flashes because, whether you will live thousands of miles away or just down the street from the Dome, you will be separated from North Side by the greatest of all distances-time.

This book is intended to bridge that ever-growing gap. The staff of The 1976 Legend wondered how the school year could be conveyed and compacted in a marketable 160-page book. After embarking on a lengthly probe to gather information about the varied elements of North Side, we discovered that a feasible format began to emerge.

A brief introductory section would provide a general description of the North Side adventure, and then in the bulk of the book we would describe in greater detail the academics, sports, and activities.

An argument can be made for every picture and sentence in this book, we think, and argue we did among ourselves at great length. Interestingly, most of our arguments centered around what each of us felt you wanted in this book.

As a result of our labor-of-love, your tenure at North Side is capable of being decoded by the casual reader or social historian. On the basis of this book, posterity will view you as perpetually youthful in a kind of nevernever land where time forever stands still with the calender fixed at 1976.
